Key Details

I specialise in UI/UX, design systems and UI style guides. I started my career as a graphic design apprentice in 2012 and have worked in the creative industry since, gaining valuable experience in graphic design, print, UI/UX, front-end development and QA.

I'm driven, enthusiastic, and always eager to learn more. I can pick up new skills quickly and easily and thrive working to a deadline.

Employment History

UI/UX Designer at Dotfive Limited

Remote, November 2016 - March 2024

I started at Dotfive as a Web Designer before moving up to a User Interface Designer role in 2018 and then a UI/UX Designer role in 2021. I worked as part of a design team until 2021, where I took over all design responsibilities. Key responsibilities were:

- Working with other designers on collaborative projects
- working independently, managing and prioritising my workload, working to tight deadlines
- Designing applications from conception to handoff (research, wireframing, highly detailed user interfaces, design systems, component libraries, UI style guides, prototypes)
- Working with the development team to handoff work and give detailed, constructive feedback using my front-end development knowledge during testing and design reviews
- Working with clients, taking on board their feedback and wants whilst carefully steering them in the right direction
- Confidently presenting my work to key stakeholders
- Covering QA testing when required, creating and executing testing scripts and reporting any issues I've found to the correct department

Freelance Graphic and Web Designer

Remote, January 2014 - November 2016

I designed and developed branding, websites, and blogs for clients. Since working at Reactive Design, I have taught myself further skills in graphic design, web design, and front-end development, and my abilities have vastly improved.

Graphic Designer at Very Niche

Hebburn NE31, March 2016 - November 2016

At Very Niche, I significantly developed my skills and work ethic. Being the only designer at the company meant a very heavy workflow, working to tight schedules and ensuring all of my work was to the highest standard.

I created brand identities and print materials, developed websites and designed user interfaces for clients.

Apprentice Designer at Reactive Design

Hartlepool TS25, June 2012 - January 2014

At Reactive Design, I designed logos, stationery, brochures, magazines (etc.), making sure all my work was error-free and set up for print correctly. With guidance from the senior developer, I designed and developed simple brochure sites for clients. I dealt with clients directly, either in person or via email or telephone. While working, I also completed a level 2 apprenticeship in IT.
